Community Care of West Virginia (CCWV) has been serving the needs of rural, medically underserved West Virginians for over thirty years and has expanded its scope and service area to address the needs of others beyond the reach of the original service area. Now with nine separate clinical sites, four school-based sites and five pharmacies, all located in areas designated as medically underserved, CCWV now serves a substantial portion of north central West Virginia. CCWV has grown to serve a total of 22,377 patients and 107,918 encounters during 2010. Within the next year, CCWV will be focused on expanding its operations to include additional health center locations, school-based health sites and a dental site.

The CCWV mission is to improve the quality of life for its patients and communities by using a team approach to make the best possible care available and accessible to patients of all life cycles, without regard to their ability to pay. In order to serve all patients better, CCWV has invested significant resources toward the provision of quality preventative care and an innovative care model backed by a state-of-the-art electronic health record. CCWV believes that the best care is proactive, patient-centered, culturally-appropriate, comprehensive, and supported by electronic systems that ensure that every patient is offered the full breadth of available services, including general primary care, diagnostic laboratory, screenings, emergency medical services, voluntary family planning, immunizations, well child services, gynecological care, referral to specialty services, pharmacy, substance abuse services, case management, health education, outreach, and translation. Referral services supplement CCWV’s direct services, completing the full spectrum of service provision.
